

Top Pay For Your Writing

31 December 2013

Just when you thought you were doomed to the life of a starving artist, along comes a site for writers who cannot write. ListVerse.com came to life when a group of women who wanted to earn money without special skills found a way to do so.

They published lists of ten. Every list has 10 items and each item has an explanation. The topic of the list could be anything as long as each item on the list relates to the list topic.

Your list must have 1000 words or more and, if the editors like it, you will receive $100 into your Paypal account. Yes, a full $100 for a list of ten items.

The word count for the introduction should be 3 sentences of 18 words or less. A list item gets two paragraphs of three sentences each. That means each explanation will have 100 words or less.

For more information, start at the main page of the site. Be sure to look at some of the lists that appear on the site. There is no limit to the number of lists that they purchase each day.

The next list they select could be yours!